VILLA ASADA

Photographs by Dhara Bergh

Far away from the busy hubs of the busy tourism areas of Bali you can find spectacular villas tucked away in remote areas. Only 2 hours from Ngurah Rai International Airport is a hidden gem blessed with one of the most breathtaking coastline views in Bali. Situated at Manggis near Candidasa in the Eastern part of Bali, Villa Asada offers 4 bedrooms, a large swimming pool and a backdrop of the islands of Nusa Penida, Nusa Lembongan and Lombok.

Villa Asada is designed in contemporary style and characterized by an abundance of space and light, elegance and graceful simplicity. Two master suites with ensuite bathrooms are located on the second floor, featuring timber floors and contemporary furnishings, they lead onto a large balcony with a daybed from which you can enjoy fabulous views. This is a perfect spot to unwind and watch the sun go down.

Two other master bedrooms are located at the lower level having direct access to the pool area where a massage deck is furnished with sunbeds and umbrellas. If you feel like doing something other than just soaking up the atmosphere, a large garden with a daybed and a superbly equipped floor awaits your pleasure.

The main living and dining areas is large with hidden glass doors and a covered balcony which runs the full length of the room to make maximum advantage of the breathtaking views and provide a perfect place for socializing and get together.

While Villa Asada is tucked away, for figure the self makes tourist areas, it is a place with its own slice of local historical sites and attractions such as the sacred Goa Lenda (that was) Temple, the Royal Water Palace and Rara Terrace at Tirta Gangga and Kintamani Palace at Andagore. Five Leguas with a stunning white sandy beach is only a short drive from the villa and is a great place for snorkeling and diving.

Villa Asada is one of those gems that, once found, is never forgotten.

Two other guest bedrooms are located at the lower level having direct access to the pool area where a poolside deck is furnished with sunbeds and umbrellas. If you feel like doing nothing other than just soaking up the atmosphere, a large gazebo with a shingle roof and a deeply cushioned floor awaits your pleasure.

The main living and dining room is huge with folding glass doors and a covered balcony which run the full length of the room to take maximum advantage of the breathtaking views and provide a perfect place for socialising and get-togethers.

While Villa Asada is tucked away, far from the well trodden tourist areas, it is a place with its own store of local historical sites and attractions such as the sacred Goa Lawah (bat cave) Temple, the Royal Water Palace and Rice Terraces at Tirta Gangga and Karangasem Palace at Amlapura. Blue Lagoon with a stunning white sandy beach is only a short drive from the villa and is a great place for snorkeling and diving.

Villa Asada is one of those gems that, once found, is never forgotten.
